

http://www.ladowntownnews.com/news/la-plaza-cultura-village-breaks-ground/article_7963bd2c-5b37-11e6-b41a-1b9b8f2196b3.html

FEATURED

La Plaza Cultura Village Breaks Ground

Aug 5, 2016

Initially expected to commence in June, the La Plaza Cultura Village project, near Olvera Street at the intersection of Broadway and Cesar E. Chavez Avenue, officially broke ground on Aug. 4.

[Get DTLA stories in our daily email newsletter.]

The development comes from the county and developer Trammell Crow, and it will transform two parking lots into four- five- and eight-story buildings designed by the Chinatown-based architecture firm Johnson Fain. The buildings will have a total of 355 apartments, 20% of which are being set aside as subsidized units for low-income residents. The La Plaza Cultural Village will also hold more than 43,000 square feet of commercial space, and 720 parking units.

The La Plaza Cultura Village project will create four buildings holding 355 residential units. The project is expected to be finished in 2018.

image courtesy of Johnson Fain

Part of the development includes updating walkways to connect it to La Plaza, Union Station and Olvera Street. The project is expected to be completed in 2018.